

Located in the southern part of the Arabian Peninsula, measuring some 650,000 square kilometers; The Rub'a Al Khali is the largest contiguous sand-desert in the world. Bordering Oman, Yemen, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, this vast, other-worldly land is a sight to behold.

In a seasonal first, Hud Hud Travels are excited to be offering a 30% reduction on all Empty Quarter bookings during October 2019, with the hope to encourage more visitors and adventure-seekers into Oman's lesser travelled regions and raise awareness of this large, sandy mecca.

Home to the world's largest sand dune- towering at 445 metres above sea-level, the Empty Quarter is a desert like no other...

Luxury in the dunes...

Experience the Empty Quarter without compromising on comfort or luxury at your own private camp, which is specifically created to ensure that your time in this vast landscape is as serene and luxurious as can be. Dine under the stars on a sumptuous three-course dinner curated by your own chef. Relax in a traditional, Arabic inspired sitting room lit only by candles, whilst enjoying our selection of books, games, or simply soaking up the sights through binoculars.

Take an open-air shower under the night sky before falling asleep on a proper bed amongst the stillness of the dunes with all the comforts of a five-star hotel.

During your stay; grab a sandboard from the Majlis and head up into the dunes, visit nearby desert flats covered in Geodes or visit the Frankincense tree farms.

As Dhofar's summer monsoon ends in September take advantage of day trips around Salalah to experience the land after "The Khareef" which sees the usually arid, dry landscape transformed into a lush, green oasis.
